1. FOREWORD

This document describes the benefits and pensions to be reported to the Incomes Register, including their descriptions and code values. The document also contains information on the legislative basis and tax treatment of each income type. In addition to the actual income types, chapter 3 describes items deductible from benefit and pension income, such as withholding and distraint.

A payer of a benefit or a pension defined in section 3 of the act on the incomes information system (laki tulotietojärjestelmästä 53/2018) must report to the Incomes Register benefits and pension data that have been decreed to be taxable or that affect the processing of basic social assistance granted by the Social Insurance Institution of Finland Kela. Payers of benefits and pensions must also report to the Incomes Register any payments they are obligated to report to the Tax Administration under section 28 a of the act on inheritance and gift tax (perintö- ja lahjaverolaki 378/1940). Furthermore, benefits and pension data are reported for purposes of recourse processing.

In this document, the income type description usually includes the term 'In taxation, this income is tax-exempt'. The term means that the income is tax-exempt in income taxation. Even if the income were tax-exempt in income taxation, it may be subject to inheritance tax or gift tax.

The code value of an income type is a unique identifier that is used to report the income type to the Incomes Register. The income type description describes the nature of the income type and the grounds for granting the benefit or pension. The description includes information on the statutes on which the payment is based. The payment may be based, for example, on law, a collective agreement, insurance terms and conditions or a municipality's decision.

The income types in the Incomes Register provide the level of detail required by all or some data users. Benefits and pension systems may use more income types and require that the data should be itemised more precisely than in the Incomes Register. The payer must then code the income types used in their own benefits and pension system to match the Incomes Register's income types.

In addition to this document, the income types of benefits and pensions are discussed in the document Benefits - Codes - Income types.

| 1034 | Old-age pension (National Pensions Act) | Kela's old-age pension is a national pension type for people over 65 years of age. For persons born after 1965 the age limit for the old-age pension is linked to the retirement age under earnings-related pension legislation. A person born prior to 1958 may be granted an early old-age pension no earlier than from the beginning of the month after the person turned 63 years of age. For persons born between 1958 and 1961, the lower age limit of the early old-age pension is 64 years. The early old-age pension is permanently lower than the regular old-age pension. An old-age pension that is not an early old-age pension can be paid to a long-term unemployed person under certain conditions based on so-called additional days of unemployment prior to the person turning 65 years of age. The old-age pension can be postponed if the pension starts later than from the beginning of the month when the person turns 65 years of age. In taxation, this income is earned income. | Code | Income type name | Income type description |
|------|-------------------------|--|
| 1266 | Withholding tax | Prepayments assessment where the payer deducts the tax calculated based on the withholding rate from the monetary amount paid to the taxpayer. The withholding tax can be reported as a total amount in the report, even if several income types are reported. Underlying legal provision: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ act on tax prepayments (ennakkoperintälaki 1118/1996) |
| 1267 | Tax at source | The final tax collected from a payment made to a non-resident taxpayer that the payer is obligated to collect from the income in connection with the payment. This itemisation type is used to report only the tax at source collected and paid to Finland. The tax at source can be reported as a total amount in the report, even if several income types are reported. Underlying legal provision: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ act on the taxation of non-residents' income (laki rajoitetusti verovelvollisen tulon verottamisesta 627/1978) |
| 1268 | Tax at source deduction | A deduction made from the total amount of a payment made to a non-resident taxpayer before tax at source is collected. When tax at source is collected, a deduction of EUR 510 per month is made from the total amount of income for which a 35% tax at source is collected. When the income has been accrued during a period of less than a month, EUR 17 per day is deducted from the total amount. However, the deduction may not be larger than the amount of income. A requirement for the deduction is that the taxpayer presents the payer with a tax-at-source card where the deduction is recorded. Underlying legal provision: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ act on the taxation of non-residents' income (laki rajoitetusti verovelvollisen tulon verottamisesta 627/1978), section 6 |
